

Paynter Dixon

Paynter Dixon is a multi-disciplinary project management and construction company with staff qualified and experienced in a wide variety of disciplines from architecture to nursing. We have a dedicated health and ageing team with extensive experience and expertise and they form our Health and Ageing Plan to Build section in NSW, Victoria and Queensland.

On all our projects we offer a highly specialised and unique project management and construction service. This specialised method assists you by providing experts in building planning, co-ordination and construction so you can concentrate your expertise on the provision of aged care. We work with you from the early design phase of the project offering substantial value-add through this type of specialised service:

Shortens Program

A decrease in the overall duration of the project when compared to other procurement methods.

Fixed Cost

We secure a total project 'final estimate' cost before the design is detailed and offer of a fixed cost for construction

Innovation

We introduce construction knowledge, buildability and innovation, while the design is being detailed and during the construction process.

Improves Value

Overall, this method generally offers either a decrease in the total project cost when compared to other procurement methods or enhanced performance or both

Establishes Program

We identify a project completion date before the design is detailed.

Reduces Claims

Our method decreases opportunities for claims compared to separate design and construction responsibilities

Meets Expectations

The completed project meets the Owner's and user's envisioned function goals (fit for purpose).

Design is client-centred and strategic.

Aged care design and aged care operational expertise are combined to achieve excellence.
